SUSAN RICHARD NELSON, United States Magistrate Judge

The above-entitled matter comes before the undersigned Magistrate Judge of District Court on Defendant Bayer Corporation's Motion for Discovery Sanctions against Plaintiff Donald Norsworthy [Doc. No. 174]. This matter has been referred to the undersigned for a Report and Recommendation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636 and D. Minn. LR 72.1.

I. INTRODUCTION

Defendant Bayer Corporation ("Bayer") moves this Court to dismiss this action with prejudice as a sanction under PTO 149 and Rule 37(B)(2)(C) and 37(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for Plaintiff's failure to appear for his duly noted deposition on September 8, 2006 in Sacramento, California. Section I.A.2 of PTO 149 provides, in relevant part:

- d. Except for good cause shown, if a Plaintiff fails to appear for his/his scheduled deposition, such Plaintiff's claims will be dismissed with prejudice.
- e. If a party or its counsel does not intend to appear for a deposition, counsel for that party must provide written notice to the attorney who noticed the deposition at least 24 hours before the deposition is scheduled to commence. Absent a showing of good cause, counsel for a non-appearing party who fails to provide this notice will be liable for the fees of the court reporter.

On July 31, 2006, fully consistent with PTO 149, Defendant Bayer served a Notice of Deposition of Plaintiff Donald Norsworthy upon Plaintiff's counsel of record to be taken on September 8, 2006 in the offices of DLA Piper Rudnick Gray Cary US LLP in Sacramento, California. Plaintiff's counsel avers that they sent a number of letters, by Federal Express, which confirmed delivery, to Plaintiff advising him of his deposition and made a number of phone calls to Plaintiff, asking him to return their calls. Plaintiff failed to respond to his counsel. Having heard nothing from their client, Plaintiff's counsel nonetheless failed to seek to reschedule the deposition at a time they could guarantee his appearance.

On September 8, 2006, the deposition proceeded as noticed. Although Plaintiff's counsel appeared by phone, Plaintiff failed to appear. Fees for the court reporter's services totaled $507.60.

II. DISCUSSION

Defendant Bayer argues that Plaintiff has willfully violated PTO 149 which established mandatory procedures for case-specific discovery and that Bayer is prejudiced by Plaintiff's failure to appear for his deposition. In order to adequately defend against his claim, Bayer argues that it is entitled to fundamental discovery regarding Plaintiff's use of Baycol, the nature, extent and potential causes of Plaintiff's alleged injuries and the extent of Plaintiff's alleged damages. Moreover, Bayer argues that Plaintiff's failure to respond to his counsel's multiple communications regarding his deposition demonstrates his lack of interest in this case and his abandonment of this claim and, accordingly seeks dismissal of the action. With respect to the court reporter's fees which were necessitated by the fact that Plaintiff's deposition was never cancelled or rescheduled, Bayer argues that such fees are comparable to fees charged to transcribe other non-appearances in the State of California. Accordingly, Bayer seeks reimbursement of those fees.

Plaintiff's counsel argues that these sanctions are unwarranted because they endeavored to contact Mr. Norsworthy and that the court reporting fees charged for this non-appearance were excessive as compared to other court reporting fees paid by way of sanction for other plaintiffs in this MDL. Accordingly, Plaintiff requests that Bayer's motion be denied.

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37 provides courts with broad discretion to impose sanctions for failure to comply with discovery orders, including the ultimate sanction of dismissal with prejudice. In pertinent part, the rule states that “[i]f a party . . . fails to obey an order to provide or permit discovery, including an order made under subdivision (a) of this rule . . . the court in which the action is pending may make such orders in regard to the failure as are just, [including] an order . . . dismissing the action or proceeding or any part thereof.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(C).

In the Eighth Circuit, dismissal may be considered as a sanction only where there is an order compelling discovery, willful violation of that order, and prejudice to the opposing party. Keefer v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co., 238 F.3d 937, (8th Cir. 2000) (citation omitted). While the district court has discretion to impose discovery sanctions, such sanctions must be just and specifically related to the claim at issue. Id. (citations omitted). Before imposing dismissal, courts must consider whether a lesser sanction is appropriate under the circumstances, but need not impose the least onerous sanction available. Id. (citations omitted). The Court notes that it has supported the imposition of such sanctions in prior Baycol matters. See Bougher, et al. v. Bayer Corp., Civ. No. 02-0914 (MJD/JGL), slip. op. at 2 (D. Minn. May 24, 2004).

In the present case, PTO 149 specifically and clearly calls for the dismissal of an action, if Plaintiff fails to appear for his or her deposition. Further, the Court finds that Bayer has shown the requisite prejudice. It is undisputed that Bayer is entitled to discover fundamental facts regarding Plaintiff's usage of Baycol, injuries and damages by way of deposition. Plaintiff's willful failure to appear at his deposition, without any notice to Bayer, or his own counsel, makes it virtually impossible for Bayer to prepare an adequate defense to his claim. Hence, a sanction of dismissal of Plaintiff's claims is appropriate under these circumstances.

This Court must consider, of course, whether a lesser sanction against Plaintiff will cure the prejudice to Bayer. However, because Plaintiff saw fit to willfully ignore his deposition notice and failed to contact his own counsel after multiple inquiries, the Court finds, in its discretion, that any lesser sanction would be futile. It is recommended that Bayer's motion for dismissal be granted.

Section I.A.2.e of PTO 149 provides that, absent a showing of good cause, counsel for a non-appearing party who fails to provide notice to Bayer's counsel that Plaintiff may not appear for his deposition will be liable for the fees of the court reporter. Plaintiff's counsel here should have sought to reschedule his deposition at a time when Plaintiff's counsel could confirm his appearance. With respect to the court reporter's fees, this Court is unable to conclude, based on this record, that the fees charged were excessive. Absent an affidavit identifying fees charged for similar non-appearances in the State of California, this Court is simply unable to evaluate the reasonableness of the charges. PTO 149 places that burden on Plaintiff's counsel to demonstrate good cause to avoid liability for those fees. Plaintiff's counsel has failed to do so.

Based on all the files, records, and proceedings herein,

IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that:

1. Defendant Bayer Corporation's Motion for Discovery Sanctions against Plaintiff Donald Norsworthy [Doc. No. 174] be GRANTED;
2. Plaintiff Donald Norsworthy's action be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE; and
3. Plaintiff's counsel be required to pay the sum of $507.60 to Bayer Corporation within 10 days of the District Court's Order should the District Court adopt this Report and Recommendation.

Dated: February 28, 2007
